

Hong Kong Airport now has two enormous architectural glass artworks measuring a total of 507 square meters:

The Arrivals feature is a 30 metre long back-lit red and yellow abstract painting in glass. The surface of the glass is full of texture, matching and sometimes in contrast to the large brushstroke elements of the design.

The Departures feature is all blues and pinks, a full forty metres long, with two escalators riding upwards towards the central walkway where you can actually stand in front of the glass.
